

Optimization Challenges in Communal Sector

Olli Bräysy

We will consider all potential application areas for optimization in communal sector. Based on information collected from Finnish cities in 2010, we shall describe the detailed requirements and estimated future trends. We shall also describe the process of developing a real-life routing optimization solver in a Finnish software company. Some key features, challenges and results will be illustrated.